Honorable Sidney R. Yates, M. C.

Dear Mr. Yates:

On behalf of the Members of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, I thank you for taking the time to visit our Ames Aeronautical Laboratory at Moffett Field, California, on August 4. If you can possibly can arrange to do so, I most cordially invite you to visit our other research stations, the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory, bordering the Cleveland Municipal Airport, and our parent station, the Langley Aeronautical Laboratory on Langley Air Force Base, Virginia.

Most sincerely do I welcome your statesmanlike interest in our organization and work. I wish more of your colleagues would visit our activities. A clearer concept of the character, efficiency, and vital significance of our work to the vast and rapidly advancing program of national security through air power can be gained from a single inspection than can be acquired from voluminous hearings.

You are of course free and welcome to visit any laboratory at any time, with or without notice. If you desire, I will be glad to assist you in providing special transportation to facilitate your further visits.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Victory

1. We would like to express our sincere appreciation for the assistance rendered by the Lewis Laboratory in transporting our personnel to the Ames-P Biennial Inspection following an engine failure experienced by our airplane near Salt Lake City, Utah. The transportation made available permitted our personnel to arrive at the Ames Laboratory with a minimum of delay in travel.
